a Lawyer in the Police Court.

A portion of the Police-Court proceedings yesterday morning were especially lively. The most noteworthy incident of that tribunal for many months occurred and might have wound up in an out-and-out fisticul between Giles Jackson, a well-known colored lawyer of this city, and Susan Swann, a colored celebrity of considerable note.

The woman was charged with assaulting and beating Sarah Patterson on the street, and Jackson was prosecuting her. The attorney in the course of his remarks called the defendant a pretty hard name. With all the ferouty of her nature Susan roared; the defendant a pretty hard name. With all the ferocity of her nature Susar roared: "You call me dat name 'don't you dare!" She went for the lawver, and was caught by the officers of the court. After the turmoil had subsided the angered waman turned complacently, and with her keen eyes riveted upon the object of her madness, said: "You wouldn't think a' callin' me any such a name as dat on the street, 'cause you knows what I'd do for you.' The investigation of the case continued, however, and at the bonclusion the Justice ruled that Susan had erred to the amount of $2.59 and ordered that she be fined that and the costs added.

The other cases were of more importance to the city, speaking from a financial standpoint. They were as follows:

Alice Booker (colored), who was charged with being drunk and disorderly, was sent to jail in default of $100 security.

The other cases were of more importance to the city, speaking from a financial standpoint. They were as follows:

Also Booker (colored), who was charged with being drank and disorderly, was sent to jail in default of $100 security.

George Moody, a white man, was fined $10 and costs for fast riding on the streets.

A negro named Clem. Robirson (colored) was required to give security in the sum of $200 for assaulting and threatening to kill Emma Fields.

A commission of lunney was ordered in the case of Thomas Rishop, charged with being of unsound mind.

JOSEPH R. ANDERSON George L. Christian, J. Taylor Ellyson, John B. Cary, Perton Wise. A CONFERENCE.

Mayor Ellyson, General Anderson, Colo nel John B. Cary, and Judge Christian yesterday at noon held a conference in the former's office regarding the next step to be taken in this important matter. The to be taken in this important matter. The committee have received information that Mrs. Davis will probably be here in October—it is not likely that she will come sooner—and at that time the question of considering a site for the location of the monument will probably be taken up. COLLECTING PUNDS.

The committee during their conferen should, through their collectors, under-take the task of geiting the funds from the citizens of Richmond. So many people are now out of the city that it is at pres-ent almost impossible to begin the work of raising money, but no time will be lost in devising plans of work and in account. raising money, but no time will be lost in devising plans of work and in acquainting people with the purposes of the association and in arranging all of the many details incident to such a great undertaking. The committee think that the monument should not cost less than $100,000 to make it at all worthy of the man and the cause he represented.

The old Richmond Theatre, whose walls have for so many years echoed with laughter, the lamentations, and the mirth of famous actors, is now the scene of chaos and confusion; but it is the confusion which foreruns better and has the reputation of being the most sucbrighter days, for ere the autumn breezes e the leaves with gold and russet the old hall will reappear in a coat of tresh new colors, and every recess touched by new colors, and every recess touched by the painter's brush will come forth as if bathed in the fountain of youth and beauty. Even the old forest monarchs which by the push of the "super's" hand slid forth from hidden recesses and cast their shadows upon the "carpet green" of the stage will be rejuvenated by the artist's touch, while rustic cottages, lonely streets, and bright boudons will all be gladdened by the delictions effects of paint.

But to make a long story short, the old Theatre is to be completely remodelled, stage, scenery, boxes, orchestra, gaileries, and all.

THE FIRST FLOCA.

The first floor will be supplied with patent plush-back chairs of the most modern style, which, when closed, will furnish five inches more cross-asile space than the old ones did. The scating capacity will be so increased as to accommodate one hundred more persons, while a like number will swell the crowd of those who formerly occupied "standing room." This latter increase will be brought about by the removal of the old passage just at the main entrance.

THE CUSTAIN AND BOXES. The old curtain will be repainted, as will also the boxes, while the dressing-rooms for the actors will be comfortably fitted up and supplied with hot and cold water. A chandelier of electric lights will hang from the lofty ceiling, and the boxes and lobby will also be supplied with lights of this care. New carpets will grace the floors, and everything will assume an air of luxury and elegance. The old play-house, like other theatres, has had us ups and downs, but the dawn of a brighter era now lights its future, and in the coming season it will "blossom like tions raised by the citizens of Buchanan street.

Before the meeting had been called to order Mr. D. C. Richardson appeared before the committee as counsel for the property-holders. Ho asked whether or not the minds of the gentlemen present had been fully made up to the location of the cromatory on Buchanan street. He was pretty generally informed that such was the case. He therefore withdrew, as be considered no remarks he could make would change them.

After a short conference it was decided to meet next Tuesday evening with the Committee on Rehef of Poor to consider the advisability of putting the garbage furnace on the lot in rear of the almhouse.

It is generally understood that it the committee does not change the location of the furnaces the property-owners of the

A LIVING INFANT FOUND. Superintendent Carter of the Almshouse Takes Charge of It.

A living white infant was found on the verands of the residence of a gentleman living on west Franklin street about 11:30 o'clock last night. The resident heard a noise on the porch and went to ascertain what it was. As he opened the front door he saw a white man running off the premises. He followed the person, but could not get near enough to recognize him. The child, which was in a basket, was taken in the house and the matter immediately brought to the attention of the police. The little stranger was not more than a week or ten days old and was nicely clad, and held in its hands a nursing-bottle. The basket and its peculiar contents were turned over to Superintendent Carter, of the almshouse, who will take care of them.

This week's Trade Circular to the consumers of varnishes by James F. McEvoy is very interesting. It touches on the origin of gum copal—the advancement of its uses as a varnish from which so much elaborate workmanship has been accomplished. The pen-picture given by Mr. McEvoy of the earliest discovery of varnish-making carries the readers skilfully from the ancient to the modern methods and appliances of the various varnishes, and also furnishes many valuable hints to wood-finishers.
